Alva C. Kendall, the six-foot mining gineer from Alaska, who sauntered wound the city with about $100,000 in is pocket, was halfback on the Princeon University football team ten years it was learned yesterday by those to have been searching for him since Vegnesday. They learned little more about him and nothing whatever as to his present whereabouts. He was hig and muscular and scoffed at danger, but failure to find any trace of him through inquiry among his accosintances and at places he fregreated, led Byron W. Smith, at whose cont at 20 Seventh Avenue, Kendall sarded and who had the police send boarded and who had the police send out an alarm for him, to fear that footsads made a successful attack on him.

Kendall had been living with the Saiths since his arrival in New York shout a year ago. On June 30, he had gone to take a room at the Hetel Pennsplvania because the one he had been eccupying at the Smiths was being redecorated. He returned, however, for all his meals. Wednesday morning after breakfast, he told Mrs.
Smith that as his room was again ready for him, he would return that aftermoon and would have his bags sent n and would have his bags sent m from the hotel. In the mean-e, he said, he would do some shopime, he said, he would do some snop-ping. When he failed to return that day, Mrs. Smith became alarmed be-cause of the large amount of money she knew he had been carrying and notified District Attorney Banton.

time, he said, he would do some shopping. When he failed to return that day, Mrs. Smith became alarmed because of the large amount of money she knew he had been carrying and notified District Attorney Banton.

Displayed a Huge Roll

Rendall himself is something of a mystery, and, although he seems to have made a great many friends during his stay here, the closest of them now very few facts concerning his life. He was a native of Omaha, Neb., but, according to his own words, had no relatives or responsibilities of any kind. Since he had promised to send his bags to the Smith home that day, the fact that that he took them with him when he left the hotel might indicate that he intended to leave without notifying the Smiths. However, Mrs. Smith is positive he would not treat his best friends in that mannate he had made a considerable fortune out of mining in Alaska, and, as a matter of fact, always carried gold coins on his person, instead of small bills or silver. He had pienty of money, spent it generously and seemed to have nothing in the world to do but live a leisurely life and amuse himself.

About a week ago he withdrew a sum of money supposed to be $100.000 from the more supposed to be kind. He allowed it to be known that he had made a considerable fortune out of mining in Alaska, and, as a matter of fact, always carried gold coins on his person, instead of small bills or silver. He had plenty of money, spent it generously and seemed to have nothing in the world to do but live a leisurely life and amuse himself.

About a week ago he withdrew a sum of money supposed to be $100,000 from a downtown bank. Some time later he showed this to the Smiths, saying, family pleaded with him to put it away somewhere in safe keeping and informed him that New York was no place to carry around such a large amount. She said he laughed at their fears, but did say that he might put it some place.

Fears Gang Trailed Him

Several days later, said Mrs. Smith. Rendall, in his desire to make a more compact roll of the money, went to a store to purchase a rubber band to place around it. While the store itself is not objectionable in any way, she said that there are a number of young men frequently seen "hanging around," who have no visible means of support. She thinks that, inasmuch as Kendall was not a man to conceal a roll of bills through any fear of loafers, it is Several days later, said Mrs. Smith,

Bullet Closes Reign Of Bear Along Trails

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 7.-The big black bear which has been prowling among the Shawangunk trails for the last three years and startling automobilists is no more. A few days ago bruin strolled off the reservation once too often. Ernest Fredenburgh, at Sprucetown, added a bear's pelt to his hunting

All efforts to trap or shoot the animal had proven futile until Mr. Fredenburgh, the other night, heard a clatter near his chicken house. Jumping out of bed he looked out of the window and saw a large dark, furry object. He slipped into his clothes, secured his gun, rushed out and was successful in shooting the entirely possible that one of these men may have seen the money and trailed Kendall from then on in the hope of getting it away from him.

Mr. Smith, who is a graduate of Columbia, remembers having seen Kendall play football. His friends say he was courageous aimost to rashness and seemed actually fond of danger.

He always laughed when any one mentioned his safety and seemed to think he had nothing to fear from this part of the world as long as he had come from Alaska unharmed. However, Mrs. Smith declared that he was subject to attacks of heart disease or vertigo and that he had been the victim of three such attacks since she had known him. But inquiries at the various New York hospitals also have failed to reveal the missing man.

Electrical Supplies Active Demand for electrical supplies is more active this week than last, reports from all over the country indicate, according to "The Electrical World."

"Wire is moving well," says the report, "although price competition is fairly keen and some small recessions are noted. The lamp trade continues brisk, notwithstanding the short nights and daylight saving handicap. Considerable flood lighting is in use in connection with business building construction and the trade in automobile headlights continues active. Business in the smaller size motor market is fair, large orders being recorded in the Western district."

Linens Cheaper in London

LONDON, July 7.—Enormous reductions in the retail prices of linen goods are causing a resumption of public buying in England after months of almost complete inactivity. What effect the renewed demand of the British public will have on the wholesale mar-ket in Belfast is only a matter of speculation, but it is not believed that it will cause prices to advance, as the present retail business was made pos-sible only by the most radical reduc-

Lumber Demand Again Drops

Additional slowing up in demand for both hard and soft woods is reported this week by "Lumber." However, comparatively few "unsold cars of lumber are in transit and most of the mills have substantial orders in their files. Price trends are somewhat irregular. Advances are reported in several items of Douglas fir in contrast with a softening tendency in yellow pine. Hardwood buying has been fairly steady in Southern woods, but light in northern varieties. Prices generally are firmer.

Higher Prices for Underwear UTICA, N. Y., July 7.—Underwear manufacturers, who are members of the Knit Goods Manufacturers of America and affiliated with the balbriggan group, decided last night to open their spring, 1923, lines next Monday. Individual manufacturers expressed the opinion that prices would be higher than when the lines were opened last year by from 25 to 75 cents a dozen. Terms and datings to jobbers will be unchanged.
